

Include and Import

As our schema file size grows it will become difficult to maintain them as we have too many types in one single file.

That is where XML Schemas include and import elements comes in.

We can move some of the XML Elements into their own schema files and then include them in other schemas.

We use include when the elements are from the same namespace.

We use the import when the elements are from different namespaces.